

Author: Tammy Miller, Teacher of Students with Visual Impairments

Date: 4/2/2020

Title: Listening Eggs

Working on sound discrimination is very important with kids who have visual impairments, because it helps them enhance their listening skills to learn more about their world. A fun activity to do with your kids is to make "Listening Eggs" with plastic Easter eggs. You can fill the eggs with different things that make different sounds. For older kids (or siblings) you can create 2 of each sound and play a matching game (be sure to use random colors so they aren't matching the color...we want them to be using their ears!). Some ideas to fill eggs with: rice, beans, noodles, pennies, jingle bells, marbles, beads, legos, wrapped candy (crinkle sounds). BE SURE TO TAPE THE EGGS CLOSED with duct tape because these are all choking hazards. Have fun!

